

Nicole Goldman

Nicole@goldmanarts.com

Nicole Goldman, a tail-ender of the baby boom, lives and works in Woods Hole, MA, a small village on Cape Cod, known for its marine research institutes and the ferry to Martha's Vineyard.

Nicole has embodied many iterations of a creative professional beginning in her hometown of New York City at Parsons School of Design, in Boston for many years marketing for the arts and running a design firm with her husband Jon Goldman, and on the Cape establishing a sustainable interior design showroom and practice. Throughout the decades she has contributed to magazines, books and on-line journals on topics as varied as flooring materials to business management to historical research. She has consistently been in print whether discussing her own experiences or reporting on the achievements of other artists and designers, or human interest articles on living today.

With a distinctive voice, peppered occasionally with a sarcastic tinge of NY edginess, Nicole brings a fresh perspective to the tail-ender experience from motherhood, to pursuing new creative direction, from common observation to reality checks in a complex world. Personal narrative is a strength and Nicole has dozens of essays to share to a broad audience. She has literally travelled around the world with her family (2001-2) and lived abroad this past year with her husband in Bali, Indonesia. Her travels inform the context of her stories and help reveal truisms about our existence.

Passions – Art, design, cooking, nutrition, travel, tennis, reading, gardening, sewing and stitching, and good TV shows.

MBA – Arts Management – New York University, Stern School of Business

BA – University of California, Berkeley

Has resided in New York, Boston/ East Boston and suburbs (Wellesley, Concord), and Woods Hole, MA

Selected Publishing Credits

Dailies, Periodicals, Blogs

At Home on Cape Cod (NAHB)

BetterAfter50

The Boston Globe

Boston Globe Sunday Magazine

Boston Home Magazine

Cape Cod Home

Cape Cod Magazine

Cape Cod Times

Cape Cod View

Dallas Morning News

Design New England Magazine

Digital Output Magazine

Fine Homebuilding Magazine

g&d Magazine (USGBC)

Green Home Builder Magazine

The Homesteader
How Magazine
Inspired House
Lucky Magazine
New York Times
Newsweek Magazine
Potentials in Marketing
Wall Street Journal
Wellesley Weston Magazine

Book Contributions

The Look of the 20th Century
Environmental Graphics
50 Lights
Small Miracles: Midlife and Menopause

